I can never express my gratitude to John Rooney for the excellent job he did in selling my company, his professionalism throughout the entire process and his continued effort on my behalf. After the unexpected death of my husband, I found myself burdened with a Security Company I was ill equipped to manage or sell. Through the helpfulness of the Florida Alarm Association's Executive Director, I was put in contact with John for an initial meeting. From that first meeting, John put me at ease with his professionalism, caring attitude, and reassurance that based on my wishes and concerns for my husband's business, that the right buyer could be found. Through his extensive knowledge and contacts in the industry he was quickly able to find the right buyer and guide me through every step of the selling process. John's daily calls, reporting on each and every development, and even helping with the day to day business of running the company, kept my spirits up during the roughest of times. John negotiated not only an excellent price and terms securing my future, but also, very important to me, positions for my employees.

It's been several months since the sale of my company and John, unlike any other broker, still continues to look after my interest; reviewing monthly reports, working diligently with the new owners to make sure that even the hold-back money is secured for me. John has certainly gone above and beyond his scope of our contract, proving his dedication, integrity and professionalism. I highly recommend John Rooney & Associates and can't imagine a finer company to place your trust in.
